Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Mostly dry and warm again for southern England and Wales, although a few showers are possible across central southern England in the afternoon. Elsewhere, rather cloudy with outbreaks of rain, turning heavy over northern Scotland. Mild overnight, with occasional rain and patchy fog expected across western parts of the UK. However, it should be mainly dry with clear spells elsewhere.

Outlook for Tuesday and Wednesday:

Rain for Wales, northern and eastern England on Tuesday, but drier elsewhere with just a few sharp showers in Scotland, and southeast England where it will feel warm again. Mostly dry on Wednesday, with occasional rain and some brighter spells.
