

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Tuesday 01 Aug 2017

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
After a bright start to the day for many, showers will soon develop and become heavy, thundery and slow moving in places. Despite this, there will be some sunshine in between, especially in the south where it will feel warm in light winds.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:
Outbreaks of rain and strong winds will spread to all but the far north on Wednesday, with some heavy bursts in places. This will clear away to leave a windy day on Thursday with a mixture of sunshine and heavy, blustery showers, bringing the risk of hail and thunder.

(C) Crown Copyright 2017. Published by the Met Office.