Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Outbreaks of heavy rain will move across much of central and southern England and Wales tomorrow, these will be light and patchy at first but they will turn increasingly heavy through the afternoon and evening. Further north it will be drier and brighter, though still with some heavy showers.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:
After a damp start in the southeast, on Wednesday it will quickly turn dry and fine across the country with sunny spells. It'll be mainly dry in the south and east on Thursday though further north there will be some showers which could be heavy and perhaps thundery.
