Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:

A fine day for most on Sunday, with light winds and plenty of warm sunny spells once any early mist or fog has cleared. A little cloudier across the south at first, but this cloud should slowly clear through the day. Persistent, locally heavy rain and strong winds will affect parts of northeastern Scotland for much of the day.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:

Rain across northern Scotland will slowly die away on Monday. Otherwise, there will be a good deal of fine weather on Monday and Tuesday. It will feel warm in sunshine with light winds, but the evenings and nights will be chilly.
