

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Saturday 09 Aug 2008

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Wet and breezy weather already into western parts at dawn, will spread eastwards across the rest of the UK by, or soon after midday. Brighter weather will follow into Northern Ireland later this morning. The rain will die out later this evening and overnight, but showers will spread into the west.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:
Sunday will be a breezy day with sunny spells but also occasional showers. These will be heaviest and most frequent in northern and western parts. Monday will be another showery and breezy day with more persistent rain spreading into the west later.

(C) Crown Copyright 2008. Published by the Met Office.