

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Wednesday 09 Sep 2015

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
A good deal of cloud at first, with some drizzle near North Sea coasts, and possibly the odd light shower in southwest England. Sunny spells will be developing more widely in the south and west through the day, where it will feel quite pleasant in the sunshine. A breezier day in the southwest of England.

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:
Early mist and low cloud will clear to leave a fine day with sunny spells. Feeling warm in the sunshine, but cool and breezy along the east coast. Friday will be fine and dry, with sunny spells, but with rain arriving into the southwest later.

(C) Crown Copyright 2015. Published by the Met Office.