Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
It'll be a dry and frosty start for most, with just some patches of fog in the southeast. Rain will be moving into the northwest through the day, turning heavy at times with cloud thickening ahead. Winds will be increasing so it will feel chilly even though temperatures will be slightly milder than today.

Outlook for Tuesday and Wednesday:
It'll be a mixture of sunshine and showers over the next few days. Showers will be heavy at times and likely to be wintry over the high ground in the north. It'll feel chilly with brisk winds and widespread frosts are likely overnight.
