Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Outbreaks of rain will affect much of southern England through the day, with some heavy bursts in places. It will gradually spread eastwards through the day, with sunshine and showers following on elsewhere. The showers across northern parts will be heavy and blustery with the risk of hail and thunder. Most parts will feel cool.

Outlook for Saturday and Sunday:

The weekend remains unsettled with sunshine and showers for many, these heavy and thundery in places with the risk of hail. These ease overnight to give a chilly start to Sunday, but further wet and windy weather spreads into the west with gales developing later.
