Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
It'll be sunny today across the north of the UK down to parts of the Midlands and also across east Anglia. It will be rather breezy though and there will be some mist and cloud in the east. However in the south there will be heavy rain at times, perhaps turning thundery later and it will be another warm day.

Outlook for Tuesday and Wednesday:
Tuesday and Wednesday will be warm and cloudy across much of England and Wales, with heavy outbreaks of rain which could turn thundery in places. In Northern Ireland and Scotland though, it will be staying mostly sunny and feeling warm.
