Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Dry and fine for much of the UK tomorrow once any fog clears. The far north though will see some showers at times, with increasing cloud spreading into the far southwest during the afternoon, and perhaps some rain by the evening.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:

A southwest-northeast split will develop across the country as we go into Monday and Tuesday, with rather cloudy conditions and outbreaks of rain affecting southwestern parts. Towards the northeast though it should remain largely dry with spells of sunshine, but this will give some chilly nights with the risk of mist and fog patches developing in places.
