Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Outbreaks of rain over central and eastern areas will fragment through the day as they clear eastwards. The best of the sunshine will be in the northwest, whilst sunnier interludes in the south may trigger some heavy showers over East Anglia.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:

Wednesday should be mostly dry in the north after some early fog clears. It will be generally cloudy in the south with a band of rain set to arrive from the southwest through the morning. This will then erratically pushing northeastwards through Thursday, with some heavy and thundery showers behind.
