

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Friday 19 Jun 2015

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
The best of the weather today will be across southwestern areas with warm spells of sunshine. It will be cloudier elsewhere with some light rain across the northwest and the risk of isolated showers across the east. It will be generally cloudy overnight with patchy drizzle and more persistent showery rain pushing into some western areas later.

Outlook for Saturday and Sunday:

It will be largely cloudy on Saturday with a band of more persistent rain pushing eastwards through the morning followed by an afternoon of sunshine and showers. Sunday will be drier and sunnier across the south but with frequent showers further north.

(C) Crown Copyright 2015. Published by the Met Office.