Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Scattered showers in northwest Scotland will become less frequent and it will be a mainly dry day elsewhere with some good spells of sunshine. However, persistent and heavy rain will spread from the south across most of England and Wales during the afternoon and evening. Winds will be much lighter than of late.

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:

It will be mainly sunny on Thursday after early rain clears central and southern parts of the UK. Clear spells overnight will give a bright and frosty start on Friday, however, a band of rain will spread from the west, reaching eastern Britain in the afternoon.
