Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
It will be a chilly start across the northern half of the UK, and dry for most with fog patches slowly clearing. Some places will see showers, especially in southeastern England where they could be heavy, but many eastern areas will stay dry. Wet and windy weather will then follow to much of western Britain by the evening.

Outlook for Tuesday and Wednesday:

Wind and rain will continue across the west on Tuesday, with heavy rain across parts of south Wales and southwest England. This will slowly spread eastwards as we head into Wednesday, breaking up into blustery showers. Temperatures will be around average.
