Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Rain across England and Wales will spread northwards into southern Scotland and Northern Ireland on Friday, with somewhat drier conditions following. It will be brighter with fewer showers than of late for northern Scotland, and the winds will be generally light too.

Outlook for Saturday and Sunday:
It will stay unsettled through the weekend with the heaviest and most persistent rain expected in the north on Saturday, and then in the south through the day on Sunday. There will be some bright spells around though but we will then see further showery rain for many on Monday.
