

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Sunday 11 Oct 2015

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Rather cloudy today across Scotland and Northern Ireland with some showery rain. Dry elsewhere with sunny spells; the best of these in the east. Feeling chillier across eastern and northern parts. Breezy tonight with some cloud in the southeast, and further occasional rain for Scotland. Turning cold under lengthy clear periods elsewhere with localised frost and some isolated fog too.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:

Mainly dry with some sunshine on Monday and Tuesday, though a weakening band of cloud and rain across Scotland and Northern Ireland will edge southeastwards. Feeling chilly in the brisk breeze. Some showers are possible in the southeast on Tuesday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2015. Published by the Met Office.