Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
It's set to be a largely dry, warm and sunny day for most, although some mist and low cloud is likely to persist along mainly western coasts of the UK through the day. Some showers may develop through the afternoon, especially in the north, but will be few and far between.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:
From Friday it's set to turn more unsettled with rain and locally heavy showers pushing eastwards across most parts of the UK. As for Saturday it's a similar story, as it remains unsettled with outbreaks of heavy and occasionally thundery rain, but there will be some dry spells too.
