++ Valid for broadcast at 2159

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Across England and Wales, it will be a cloudy and damp start, but the rain will clear from the west, leaving brighter and colder conditions. However in some eastern parts, skies will take until the early evening to clear. Northern Ireland and Scotland will be cold, with sunny spells and showers.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:
Temperatures will struggle on Sunday, but most places should be dry and sunny, except for a few blustery showers in coastal areas. Monday will be off to a frosty start, and although most places will stay dry and bright, it will turn wet and windy in the northwest later.
