Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Thunderstorms and locally intense downpours will move slowly northeastwards across the UK, with a risk of hail and some gusty winds. Drier, brighter and fresher weather will follow from the southwest in the afternoon. It will feel quite humid in southeastern England, and it should stay mostly fine and warm in the far northwest of Scotland.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:

Plenty of warm sunny spells and a few showers on Sunday, heavy in places, but much drier than Saturday, and feeling fresher. Further showers are likely on Monday with a risk of more persistent, perhaps thundery rain affecting southern and eastern England.
