Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
It will be cold with icy stretches to start. There will be sunny intervals and further blustery wintry showers, these will mostly be in the northwest, and snow will become confined to hills. It will remain windy, with gales in the north.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:
There will be some wintry showers on Wednesday, but these should ease as drier conditions with some clear spells develop. A frost will likely form overnight. It will then turn milder as it becomes cloudy with some rain moving slowly southeast across the northwest on Thursday. Elsewhere it will be largely dry and bright with some sunny spells.
