Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:

Rain, which will be heavy and persistent in places, particularly in central and eastern England will push north throughout the day into Scotland later. There will be brighter but showery conditions in the northwest and the far west. The southwest is likely to become drier and brighter later.

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:

The rain in the far northeast will gradually ease and clear northwards on Thursday. It will be drier and brighter elsewhere with a few, mainly light, showers. Becoming unsettled and warmer from Friday, particularly warm and humid in the east, as showery rain slowly spreads northeastwards with thunder possible too.
