Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
A rather chilly start for some with a patchy frost. Early mist, fog and low cloud will lift and thin gradually through the morning. This will leave a fine and dry day across all parts. With light winds and long spells of sunshine it will feel very pleasant with temperatures well above the seasonal average.

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:

The end of the week will be largely dry and settled for most, with some good sunny spells. There will however be rain across the far northwest, and it will become breezier here through Friday. Mild by day but cold nights, with patchy fog.
