++ Valid for broadcast at 2159

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Scattered showers in some northern and western parts of the UK should die away during the morning, and any mist or fog patches in the west will clear, with most places having a dry day with some sunshine. Winds become light and variable and with clear skies for most, it will feel cold in the evening.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:

It remains settled on both Friday and Saturday with most places remaining dry, although it may be cloudier than on Thursday in some eastern and central parts. It will feel colder too, as the wind moves round to become east or northeasterly in direction.
