

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Monday 05 Sep 2016

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
A cloudy start, especially in the west and south with low cloud, hill and coastal fog and light drizzly rain. Eastern parts will be largely dry, following a bright start. Sunnier in Northern Ireland later. Similar overnight, with mist and fog reforming, and feeling very warm and muggy.

Outlook for Tuesday and Wednesday:

A mild, murky start on Tuesday with mist and fog slow to clear. It will be fairly cloudy everywhere, with a few spots of drizzly rain, but a few brighter spells, and it will feeling warm and humid. Wednesday will be warm but cloudy, with outbreaks of rain in the North West.

(C) Crown Copyright 2016. Published by the Met Office.