

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Thursday 04 May 2017

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Dry and breezy for most today, with plenty of sunshine across the north. Skies will be cloudier in the south, with isolated showers, but some bright or sunny spells too. It will feel warm in the northwest, but cooler elsewhere, particularly along eastern coasts.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:

Friday will be mostly dry, barring the odd shower in the southeast. There will be plenty of sunshine across the north, but skies will be generally cloudier in the south with strengthening winds. The northwest will see the best of the sunshine on Saturday, with mostly cloudy skies elsewhere and outbreaks of rain in the southwest.

(C) Crown Copyright 2017. Published by the Met Office.