++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
It will be largely dry for many today with increasing amounts of sunshine, although perhaps the odd afternoon shower. However, it will be cloudy with persistent rain across parts of northern England, Northern Ireland and southern Scotland. Rain will gradually ease overnight in the north, with a dry and mild night elsewhere.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:

Wednesday will be largely dry with sunny spells for many, and it will be very warm and sunny across the far south. There is an increasing risk of heavy and thundery showers on Thursday, although there may be some drier and brighter spells at times too.
