Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
It will be a fine start for many on Friday, though it will be chilly there is going to be some patchy mist and fog. The showers in the west, which could be heavy possibly thundery, will again extend eastwards through the day. Some eastern and more so northeastern areas should stay dry.

Outlook for Saturday and Sunday:
Saturday should be generally similar to Friday but with lighter winds, as showers are again expected to spread in from the west. Sunday will be a drier day than of late for many with fewer showers around. It will remain rather cloudy though with some sunny breaks.
