

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Friday 02 Nov 2007

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
NW.Scotland will remain cloudy, misty and damp today. Elsewhere it will be mostly dry with bright or sunny intervals developing after any early mist clears, best of these in the south and east. It will remain very mild for the time of year. It will turn misty again in the south tonight.

Outlook for Saturday and Sunday:
Southern parts will be mostly cloudy and mild with occasional brightness on Saturday. Meanwhile cloud and increasingly patchy rain will move south over N.England and Wales, with brighter, cooler conditions to the north. All parts will be cooler, but with plenty of sunshine and light winds on Sunday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2007. Published by the Met Office.