Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Any early showers and fog should slowly clear, leaving a bright day for many.
However, cloud and occasional rain will spread across northern parts through the day, with a risk of icy patches developing in places. Although it will be less cold than recently it will feel chilly in the westerly breeze.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:

It will be rather cloudy across the UK with occasionally brisk northwesterly winds and further rain in the northwest. However, some brighter spells are likely in southeastern parts at times. It will remain slightly less cold than recently but still with the risk of overnight frost and fog.
