

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Saturday 07 May 2011

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Everyone should see some bright or sunny spells today and it will feel very warm in the sunshine. Bands of heavy, thundery showers will affect most parts at times during the day and these will merge after dark to give a very wet night for most of the UK.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:
The heavy thundery rain will clear Northeast Scotland by late afternoon then everyone will be in much fresher weather with sunshine and a few scattered sharp showers. Monday stays windy in the west with a further mix of sunny spells and scattered heavy showers.

(C) Crown Copyright 2011. Published by the Met Office.