

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Tuesday 01 May 2012

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Heavy rain lying from London to South Wales will make for difficult driving conditions this morning. This will ease and clear north and westwards, leaving North Wales, Northern Ireland, and northern England with a cloudy and wet afternoon. Elsewhere it will be largely dry with some sunny spells.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:
Wednesday will be fine and sunny in Scotland but mostly cloudy elsewhere, with some light rain or showers in central areas, and heavy rain in the far southeast late in the day. Thursday will see outbreaks of rain in the south, but brighter conditions elsewhere.

(C) Crown Copyright 2012. Published by the Met Office.