

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Saturday 02 Mar 2013

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Rain in northern Scotland for a time today, otherwise mostly dry with variable amounts of cloud. The best of the sunshine across central parts of England and Wales. Often large amounts of cloud tonight, but some breaks allowing a patchy frost, most likely for southern England and South Wales. Patchy drizzle in northern parts of the UK.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:
Largely cloudy with occasional drizzle for Scotland and perhaps northern England on Sunday. Otherwise, variable amounts of cloud with a few bright or sunny spells. Largely dry on Monday with some bright or sunny spells, most likely toward the south.

(C) Crown Copyright 2013. Published by the Met Office.