

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Thursday 09 Oct 2008

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Becoming wet and windy across Scotland and Northern Ireland by this afternoon, with persistent heavy rain in the west. Across England and Wales it will be another predominantly fine day, with any fog patches dispersing during the morning. Wet and windy across Northern Ireland, central and southern Scotland, and the far north of England tonight, but fine and dry elsewhere.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:

Wet and windy across Scotland, northern England, Northern Ireland and northwest Wales on Saturday, while elsewhere it remains dry and breezy with some hazy sunshine. The north faring better on Saturday, as rain edges southwards across Wales and central England.

(C) Crown Copyright 2008. Published by the Met Office.