

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Thursday 03 Sep 2009

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Scotland and northern England wet and windy today, but turning brighter and showery in the far west. Northern Ireland, Wales, southern half of England, cool and windy, sunny intervals and scattered showers, but southwestern areas cloudier for a time. Further rain in the northeast overnight, and scattered showers over western areas, otherwise mainly dry with clear periods.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:

On Friday, rain in the far northeast dying out, sunny spells elsewhere but still a few showers in the west. On Saturday, rain at times in the west and especially northwest, but the south and east mainly dry with some sunny spells.

(C) Crown Copyright 2009. Published by the Met Office.