Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
It will be a cold and frosty start to the new week, but this will give plenty of sunshine for most areas. The far south will be cloudier and windier though, and this will gradually spread northwards, perhaps giving some drizzle and light snow over hills.

Outlook for Tuesday and Wednesday:

Tuesday will be mainly cloudy with further patchy drizzle in places, before rain arrives in the west later. This will push across most parts into Wednesday, with brighter skies following on behind. A scattering of showers will affect the southwest, otherwise it will be brighter and slightly less cold.
