Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
After a bright and chilly start on Tuesday, rain and strengthening winds will move quickly eastwards, bringing some hill snow in the north. Drier and brighter weather follows in the afternoon, but further wet and very windy weather will spread into western parts by evening, with strong winds and gales for many on Tuesday night.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:
Strong winds or gales for Northern Ireland, England and Wales on Wednesday, along with squally showers. Scotland will be breezy with more isolated, wintry showers. A largely dry and bright start on Thursday with lighter winds, but rain and stronger winds arrive through the day.
