Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
A band of rain and blustery winds will move across Britain from the west, with some heavy bursts likely during the morning. The rain will reach southeast England later in the evening, with the brighter and fresher conditions across Northern Ireland then following on behind.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:

Friday will be off to a chilly start and although it will be mostly dry and bright in the southeast, rain will arrive from the northwest. Into Saturday, it will stay wet and windy in the northwest, but with drier and brighter weather in the southeast.
