Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:

A chilly start for many tomorrow morning with fog patches, and frost, especially in the north. The fog patches will soon lift to leave most places fine and dry with fairly light northerly winds. There will, however, be a few showers around mainly towards coastal areas. Temperatures reaching 9 Celsius across the south.

Outlook for Tuesday and Wednesday:

Becoming milder but cloudier and breezier through Tuesday and Wednesday. Rain is expected at times across the north and west of the UK, with often dry conditions towards the south and east. The nights will also be milder and mainly frost-free, especially in the south.
