++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Cloudy and windy with rain, some heavy, for parts of Scotland, Northern Ireland, and the far north of England today. Further south it will be dry, very warm and sunny, but with some low cloud affecting western Wales. The rain will continue to affect more northern areas overnight, with fairly muggy conditions, whilst remaining mainly dry in the south.

Outlook for Tuesday and Wednesday:
Staying rather cloudy and humid with occasional rain, some heavy, across Northern England and northwest Wales. The hot and sunny weather will continue further south, whilst it will be mostly dry and cool with isolated showers across Scotland and Northern Ireland.
