++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Southern areas will have a cloudy and damp start. It will gradually brighten up, although there will be a gusty wind. Meanwhile the north will have sunny spells and scattered, locally heavy and blustery showers. The north and west will hold on to some showers overnight. Elsewhere it will become dry with clear intervals, and the strong wind will ease.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:

A few showers are likely in the north and northwest on Wednesday and Thursday. The rest of the British Isles will be mainly dry with some sunshine. With winds generally lighter than of late it should start to feel warmer.
