++ Valid for broadcast at 2159

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
It will be a rather cloudy start in places with low cloud and fog patches, particularly across southern England. Through the day, the cloud should break up to allow more sunny spells to develop, making it feel pleasantly warm. Most areas will be dry although some light showers are possible in the west, and it will be breezy across Scotland.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:
The mostly dry theme will continue on Sunday and Monday with rather cloudy conditions at times but also some warm spells of sunshine. The northwest will be breezier with occasional rain, and scattered showers may affect southeastern areas by Monday.
