Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Northern and western parts will get off to a bright but chilly start, with some patches of mist and fog. Through the day it'll stay mostly dry with some decent sunny spells. Further south and east there will be more in the way of cloud, with some showery rain likely. Despite some sunny breaks it'll feel rather chilly.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:
High pressure will remain in control through the end of the week and into the weekend meaning further largely fine weather is to come. Variable amounts of cloud mean some sunshine, with a few spots of rain too. It'll remain rather chilly.
