++ Valid for broadcast at 2159

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
It will be a cloudy day across northern parts of the UK with outbreaks of rain spreading south. There is a significant risk that this rain will fall onto sub-zero ground for a time, leading to some icy stretches. Further south it will be drier with some sunny spells and similar conditions are likely to develop later across northern Scotland.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:

Friday and Saturday will remain cloudy with further spells of rain, sleet and snow. There is the potential for some significant snow accumulations across the central swath of England by the end of Friday, but these should ease on Saturday.
