Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Rain over northwest Scotland is likely to persist throughout the day. Elsewhere, there will be brighter spells and showers with the risk of hail and thunder, and some of the showers may merge into longer spells of rain. It will be windy with gales in exposure making it feel cool for the time of year.

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:

Any remaining showers will ease through Thursday leaving a largely dry day with lighter winds, making it feel warmer. After a generally fine start to Friday with some sunshine, heavy rain and strong winds will push up from the south, reaching northern areas by evening.
