Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Rain across Northern Ireland and Scotland tending to ease, though remaining rather cloudy and windy, with severe gales in the far northwest. Cloudy start with some hill fog across England and Wales, but becoming increasingly sunny and feeling warm. Although the very mild temperatures will be offset by the breeze in the west.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:
Cloud and rain in the northwest spreads slowly southeastwards on Sunday, but remaining sunny in southeast England. Brighter in the northwest with showers. Rather cloudy with patchy rain across southern parts on Monday. Elsewhere generally fine, once any fog patches clear, with variable cloud and some sunshine.
