Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow :
England and Wales, sunny spells for many but also showers, especially at first and again this afternoon, some heavy and thundery. Warm in sunshine but cooler around coasts where it will be misty at times. Scotland and Northern Ireland, cloudier with rain, some heavy for a time, although brightening in the south later. Tonight, rain will continue in northern Scotland and heavy, thundery rain will move across southeastern England. In between, patchy fog and showers.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:

A brighter day for Scotland Monday but, otherwise, unsettled with further heavy, thundery showers at times for all areas, albeit with some sunshine in between.
