Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Rather cloudy across the UK with heavy showery rain over parts of northern England and southern Scotland. Scattered showers elsewhere, with more general rain across southwestern parts. A few heavy showers continuing over northern England tonight, with clear spells and isolated showers elsewhere, but mainly dry across southwest England and Northern Ireland.

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:

Cool and rather cloudy with isolated light showers across Scotland and Northern Ireland Thursday, but sunshine and scattered showers elsewhere, some becoming heavy later across the Midlands and southeast England. Then, much drier and brighter during Friday with isolated showers.
