Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Showers across south-eastern England soon clearing, giving a dry and bright start for most. It may be rather grey at first, but it should soon brighten up away from the east coast. Heavy and thundery showers will develop during the day, mainly across western parts, but much less widespread than Tuesday's showers.

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:

It will be largely warm and sunny on Thursday, after any early mist and fog patches clear away, with a few showers developing into the afternoon, mainly in the west. Friday turns cooler and breezier from the west with outbreaks of showery rain spreading eastwards.
