

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Sunday 08 Jun 2014

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Any early cloud will break with warm sunny spells developing. However scattered showers will continue especial in the north and west, perhaps turning heavy with thunder. Winds will be light but breezier in the west. Showers will ease overnight, leaving most places dry, however further outbreaks of rain will spread into the south.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:

Monday and Tuesday will both be rather cloudy at times, but these grey skies will break to give some warm sunny spells. Scattered showers also remain likely, heavy and thundery in places, and perhaps merging into longer spells of rain. It was also turn breezier on Tuesday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2014. Published by the Met Office.