Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Warm sunshine for England and Wales after morning fog clears. Cloudier in the north with patchy rain in the west. More persistent rain for the Northern Isles. Brightening up later Northern Ireland and southwest Scotland. A dry night with clear spells for much of the UK. Cloudier for northern and western Scotland, with a few spots of rain possible.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:

A fine start for most on Sunday with warm sunshine, but gradually clouding over from the west, with some rain for western areas and a few showers elsewhere. A breezy day on Monday with a mixture of bright spells and showers.
